A real family affair, Scout, is a range of practical and cute clothes for bubs founded by a mum and designed by the grandma. Apparently, even Dad helps out with the website and photography. But the big selling point for us is that all the gorgeous, hand-embroidered outfits are manufactured in Peru and made with fair-trade, organic and super-soft Pima cotton.

The collection focuses on three areas: t-shirts, bodysuits and pants, which is perfect because simple clothes are often all most new parents can handle! And let's face it, babies just want comfy clothes which make exploring their new world easy.

See the collection online at Scout or buy at Dandelion Baby where bodysuits start at US$26 and they ship to Australia.
